

Neutron star mass measurements

B. Kiziltan¹, S.Thorsett¹, D. Psaltis ², D.Chakrabarty³

¹U. of California, Santa Cruz

²U. of Arizona, Tuscon

³MIT

ABSTRACT: The number of pulsars in binary systems has significantly increased in the last 10 years. We will review the currently available mass estimates of all pulsars and discuss the implications of the mass distribution to the models of supernova explosions, stellar evolution, binary evolution and the equation of state of matter at nuclear densities.